CALIBURGER TO BEGIN DELIVERY SERVICE IN WASHINGTON DC

January 23, 2017 – CaliBurger™ announced today that it will begin delivering its California style burgers to customers in the Washington D.C. area in February 2017. The initial launch of the delivery program will be followed later in the year by openings of outlets. In certain trade areas starting in February and prior to the restaurant openings in late 2017, customers will be able to order through UberEats, PostMates, DoorDash, and GrubHub. Customers can also use the CaliBurger mobile App to order in advance and incur no delivery charges.

"With the burgeoning infrastructure for food delivery through services such as UberEats, we have witnessed a rapid increase in our delivery business in North America," said John Miller, Chairman of CaliBurger. "Long before customers in Washington D.C. ever eat at a CaliBurger restaurant, they will be able to order a CaliBurger meal and have it delivered to them."
